Art Unit: 1725

1. Claims 6, 7, 9, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 6, it recites "the heater and/or the high frequency coil". However, it is not clear in what manner "the heater and the high frequency coil" are used in the process. Also, there is a lack of antecedent basis in the specification for the claimed feature. In claims 7 and 12, the statement of "or the like" is deemed to be indefinite in that it is not clear what structure is claimed. In claim 9, what "cooling mechanism" is referred to ?

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 1725

4. Claims 1-12 insofar as definite are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over applicant's admitted prior art as set forth in page 1 of the specification and further in view of JP 2002-104,130.

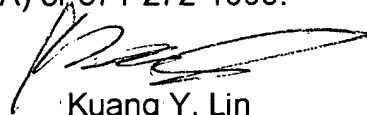

The admitted prior art shows that it is conventional to form a complex cooling pores in a cooling structure of a gas turbine through a very difficult machining process. However, JP '130 shows that pores of desired orientation can be formed in-situ through a directional solidification process. It would have been obvious to form the pores of the conventional cooling structure of the gas turbine with the process of JP '130 to simplify the manufacturing process and thereby reduce the manufacturing cost. With respect to claim 3, etc., it is conventional to form a directional solidification structure through the floating zone melting process (see, for example, US 4,934,446 to Winter et al. or US 2005/0145364 to Nakaiima).
